The Case of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Sharp Contest for the Office of commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Special Despatches to The Sun. NOMINATION OF MR. EVARTS.

WASHINGTON, June 22 .- The President to-day nominated Wm. M. Evarts to be Attorney General. A very vigorous effort has been already commenced to prevent his confirmation, with every probability of its being successful. Gen. Butler will furnish Senators with abstracts of testimony taken by him, which, he claims, will be exceedingly damaging to Mr. Evarts.

SECRETARY M'CULLOCH. The assaults upon Secretary McCulloch by some of the President's friends continue with increasing vigor. Mr. McCulloch, however, publicly announces his determination to remain in the Department until a formal demand is made upon him his action as to further remaining will be decided. Annoyed by these attacks upon him, he says, while they continue he will not resign to please any one, not even the President.

THE REVENUE COMMISSIONER.

The contest for the place of Commissioner of Internal Revenue is growing very warm between Fuller and Cutler. Fuller claims to have twelve Republican Senators committed to his election, while Cutier claims pretty much the entire Senate; but but the President hesitates to act for foar they are counting without their host. Some action will probably be taken this week.

THE TAX BILL.

Jen. Schenck expects to pass the Tax bill through the House this week, but the indications are that it will occupy until the middle of next week with a prospect of Congress continuing in session until August to secure its final passage.

GOLD CONTRACTS. The House Ways and Means Committee are averse to Mr. Sherman's Senate bill legalizing gold contracts. They fear it may create difficulties with lege' traders. It will probably slumber the remain-. the session, in the Committee.

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY. The SECRITARY OF THE TRANSCRY.

The President has given no intimation to Mr.
McCullough that his resignation as Secretary of the Treasury would be acceptable. From all that can be ascertained, the relations between him and the PresIdent continue friendly. There is no indication that he will resign, although efforts continue to be made by certain parties to produce that result.

REMOVING DISABILITIES.

The bill removing political disabilities from a great number of Southerners, came up on a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was lost on Saturday. It was reconsidered, 90 to 19. During the debate inquiry was made as to the status of General Longstreet. Mr. Broomal said that his case had given more bother than any other, and yet he believed that all who had examined the matter attentively had come to the conclusion that that was a proper case for relief. The General of the army was one of the most earnest vouchers for the present loyalty and repentance of Gen. Longstreet; besides, it was believed by those best acquainted with the temper of the South, and with the business of reconstruction, that to take a strong case like that of Gen. Longstreet, where the sin had been great, and the repentance was known to be open and thorough, such as to bring down on his bead the most violent denunciations from the class of men whom he had deserted, was good polley. No man had been more diligent and cannest in aiding in the reconstruction of the South than Gen. Longstreet, and he (Mr. Broomall) had no bestution in voting to remove his disabilities. If, sudd he, they condemned him, where would he go? His old class of friends would like to murder him. If we desert him they will point him to the acts of his new friends, and sneer at him, and he will have no inducement to a good future. If we treat thin as such a man aways should be treated, his future course, I have no doubt, will justify our action.

The Democratic side took up the question, and by various interpellations and other methods of delay, endeavored to defeat action. Finally the previous question was ordered, and the bill pussed by yeas (two Democrats), nays 4 (30 of them Democrats.)

ENTUCKY CONTESTED SEAT.

Mr. Bradley, counsel for the prisoner, declined to go on, maintain ig that the trial for muster should be first disposed of.

After a long coussion, the Court stated that the present case has now been pending for six terms of the Court, four lawing transpired since the trial of last summer. The prisoner had not be in convicted, and he could not, therefore, presume him to be guilty. Under the circumstances he was entitled to the same rights as any other prisoner would have, and he should have those. He directed that the prisoner be discharged under the indictment for murder, which was accordingly entered.

The District Attorney did not, however, enter a noble proceept, and the original indictment stands against the prisoner, upon which, it is understood, he may hereafter be again arrested.

After a slight demonstration of disorder manifested outside the har of the court, upon hearing the order to discharge the prisoner, was suppressed, the District Attorney moved to proceed with the trial upon the indictment charging Surratt with conspiracy; when Mr. Merrick, after stating that the counsel for the desence on the original indictment had nothing to do with this new case, not having been engaged beyond reference to the arraignment for murder, under which the prisoner had been discharged, they were not willing to go on with the trial. They had devoted time and labor to the former case, and thought they had performed their duty to the prisoner; but now there were paramount duties claiming their attention, which might not allow them to act any further for Surratt. Today, how ever, or until ne engaged other counsel, they were ready to act for him. They asked time for the prisoner, was a correct one under the electionstances. The Court suppressed argument in the matter, and directed the case to be continued natif Monday next. Upon a motion to admit to sail, he said that the erime charged was a very great one, and he would have to fix a large bail. If convicted upon the indictment of ten years in a penitentiary. He would fix the bail at $20,000.

The Boal was soon procured and Surratt was released. His bail are John J. Eogue, R. H. Trunnell, Owen Thorn, and Michael Shea, in the sum of $20,000.

He spoke mainly to the issues which brought on the war, and which he believed still governed those who opposed the nominees of the Republican Convention. Among other points made by him, which aroused the enthusiastic approval of his hearers, was that while the Democracy claimed to be standing by and fighting for the Constitution, they most carnestly insisted upon its violation by the admission of those recently sympathizing with and engaged in the rebelion to scats in the Congress of the United States, while the Constitution for which they claimed they were fighting, expressly declared that before being eligible to a scat in the House of Representatives a man must have been a citizen seven years, and before he could occupy a seat in the Stense he must have been a citizen seven years, and before he could occupy a seat in the Stense he has a been a citizen ten years. The men who were refused admission, he claimed, were, less than four years age, declared, and therefore could not of right hold seats in either House. A series of Grant and Coffax resolutions was adopted unanimously, and after specches from Messrs. Greeley and Carter, who had then arrived, the meeting adjourned, after voting thanks for the addresses and giving cheers for the candidates.

Advices from the east end of the island state that there are millions of them in the vicinity of Patchouque and Farmingdale. The noise made by these insects are perfectly deafening, and can be heard for the distance of haif a wile, resembling very much that of a mowing machine when at work. They devour everything green in their way, and great fear is entertained that the growing erops will be destroyed by them.

THE BROOKLYN BOARD OF ALDERMEN-THE NIC-The Brooklyn Board of Aldermen—The Nicolason Payineent Jor Vetoch by the Mayon.—At a regular meeting of the Brooklyn Board of Aldermen yesterday afternoon a communication from the Mayor was read, in which he vetoes the resolutions passed on the 8th inst., awarding contracts to the Nicholson Payement Company for regrading and reparing Fort Greene place, Portland avenue, and Pierrepont street. His Honor argues that these improvements, as directed by the resolutions, are in palpable and flagrant violation of the letter and spirit of the city charter. Until recently the instart was required to adventise for proceedings. ed by the resolutions, are in paipable and flagrant violation of the letter and spirit of the city charter. Until recently the Board was required to advertise for proposals and was restricted to the lowest bid, and it had therefore no right to so shape a resolution that there could be no genuine competition for the supply of the article called for. The Company for laying the Nicholson pavement held a patent, and they slone could supply material and construct the pavement.
If they resolved to confine the work to this one Company it would be more honest to openly break the law and give them the work outright without going through the tarce of inviting proposals from contractors in general. The Board had a perfect right to advertise for the laying of wooden pavements, but they had no right to restrict the proposals to the Nicholson Company's particular wooden pavement. His Honor stated that he had very little faith in wooden pavement, from the fact that they soon wore out; the coating of tar rubbed off, and the wood decayed. As long as the pavement continued intact it tended to kill the shade trees, by prevooting the moisture of the surface from penetrating to the roots. The trouble of removing it to lay gas the roots. The trouble of removing it to lay gainers and sewers was also adverted to. The commupipes and sewers was also adverted to. The communication was placed on file.

The Board accepted an invitation to review the Fifth and Eleventh Brigades from the City Had steps on the Fourth of July next.

A petition from licensed carmen was presented, asking for the repeal of the ordinance requiring license as they argue that by granting license the carting of the entire city was monopolized by comparatively few persons. The petition was referred to the Law Committee. A resolution, offered by Alderman O Brien at a previous meeting, revising the election districts, and increasing the number about one-third, was taken from the table and adopted. Shortly after which the Board adjourned.
